A salute to First Federal

In today's issue of the Dixon Evening Telegraph, readers will find an eight-page section devoted to the new First Federal Savings and Loan Association building, 413 N. Galena Ave.

Along with the thousands of congratulatory messages this institution will be receiving-the Dixon Evening Telegraph would like to add their commendation to a financial establishment which grew from a dream. During the 1950s, the late Alden F. Hunter, wellknown businessman began sampling opinion in the community relative to the support for a new savings and loan association.

As a number of readers will recall, Hunter's determination and dream kept him going when there seemingly was a lack of enthusiasm for the ven-

They opened for business in their first office at 106 W. River St., with Hunter in charge, assisted by Dorothy Butler, the present managing officer of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Through the years the enthusiasm of Alden Hunter became the driving force behind the continued growth of this financial institution.

For the past 19 years, First Federal Savings and Loan Association has loaned millions of dollars to home builders and home buyers in the greater Dixon area. They have also been of tremendous financial assistance to the business community of this area.

At the end of the first year, the savings capital exceeded $700,000 and at the present time, deposits have passed $20 million.

After the passing of Alden Hunter in 1965, Dorothy Butler was named managing officer. She also serves as executive vice president.

The new building on North Galena Avenue represents a sizeable investment in Dixon and we are confident the First Federal Savings and Loan Association will continue to grow and prosper

Dixon cafe owner robbed of $5,300 Approximately $5,300 was taken early today from Ruth Blank during a strong-armed robbery outside her home, at 802 W. First St

Dixon Police received the call on the robbery shortly after 4 a.m. When police talked to Mrs. Blank, she told them she was walking to her car, parked behind her house in the driveway, when a man jumped from the bushes and grabbed her purse and a cigar box. Mrs. Blank told police the man was a white male wearing dark coveralls. The thief then knocked the Blank woman to the ground, injuring her wrist, and made off with the purse and cigar box through her back yard to Second Street, where he fled in a small dark car.

Mrs. Blank's purse contained $5,000 in $50 and $1 denominations, including 12 social security envelopes containing approximately $1,000. The cigar box contained between $200 and $300 from receipts for Blank's Cafe. Mrs. Blank had been on her way to the cafe at the time of the robbery. Dixon Police are continuing investigation into

Mondale drops from presidential picture

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Walter F. Mondale has become the second drop-out of the 1976 Democratic presidential race, leaving liberal Democrats at least temporarily without a well-known contender.

Mondale announced his withdrawal Thursday just a few hours after Sen. Henry M. Jackson, who has strong support from party regulars and organized labor, disclosed he has hired a key party organizer

The Jackson recruit was Robert J. Keefe, 40-year-old executive director of the Democratic National Committee. He will become political director of the still unofficial Jackson campaign Dec. 1.

That will enable him to take charge of the Washington senator's effort at the party's Dec. 6 mini-convention in Kansas City. Candidates and potential candidates will display their wares in Kansas City for some 3,000 After that week, according to top Democrats, many of them

Nest of Red spies

On Oct. 24, 1945 enough nations ratified the charter of the United Nations to bring it into existence-China, Soviet Union, England, France and the United States. People all over the world desired some method of preventing wars. The Communists knew this, so prepared to steer this new organization to their advantage

A formal meeting was held in San Francisco April 25, 1945. Russia sent its top-flight negotiators. The United States was represented by 18 delegates-17 of them were later identified as secret Communist agents headed by Alger Hiss, who was the chief planner and executive officer of the whole organization. Hiss had the responsibility for writing the charter, which turned out to be 100 per cent to the desires of the Russians. The United Nations was formed to become a powerful instrument in their program to establish a one world Communist tyranny over the total population of the earth.

People were told the United Nations would preserve peace. There have been 14 wars since the founding of the United Nations. Three of these wars have been conducted by the United Nations itself. In two of these practically all the fighting was done by the American boys, namely Korea and Vietnam. These are the only wars we have ever failed to win. I wonder why?

Another dreadful war in a province of the Belgian Congo, Katanga-a foul action perpetrated by the United Nations on a peaceful people who wanted their own ruler to lead their nation in the path of freedom. That was their mistake, for the Communists decided to liberate the Belgian Congo. The Communists chose an agent, a native African with a criminal record named Patrice Lumumba, and he was put in power. The Russians shipped him guns, equipment and financial help. He had the backing of the United Nations and the United States. In 1960 Moise Tshombe, an able governor of Katanga, declared it was withdrawing from the Belgian Congo. He requested the Belgians to return their troops to the province to maintain

On July 14, 1960 the United Nations authorized the use of United Nation troops in the Congo to depose the leader Tshombe. United States planes flew in these Communisttrained soldiers, mostly into Katanga, the only peaceful province in the entire Congo. The final results, after years of much slaughter, Tshombe was driven out of the Belgian Congo.

Dean Rusk, United States Secretary of State, had the gall to inform the American people that the United States was backing the U.N. in order to save the Congo from Commu-

Alger Hiss attended the Yalta Conference, where President Roosevelt agreed to let the Soviet Union have three votes to the United States' one in the United Nations which was to be formed later that year. The first 500 Americans employed by the United Nations were selected by Alger Hiss.

The United Nations has been the keystone of the United States foreign policy since 1945 and has dragged us to the brink of disaster. The Soviet Union has three votes to our one in the United Nations, but the taxpayers of America are assessed more than twice as much as the Soviets for payment of the United Nations expenses. In 1970 the assessment against the United States for U.N. expenses, including three of the United Nations agencies—the UNESCO-World Health Organization-Food and Agricultural Organization-was $95 million. Total assessment against the Soviet Union was $45 million. The United States pays almot one-third of the United Nations operating expenses. All the rest are supposed to pay the balance, but are years behind.

Article 19 of the U.N. charter provides that any nation two years in arrears in payment shall have no vote in the U.N. general assembly. The article further states that the general assembly may permit such members to vote.

The Soviet Union has refused to pay its obligation and the United States still keeps on shelling out the earnings of the American taxpayers.

The U.N. is a nest of Communist spies, saboteurs, living inside our country, largely at our expense, while enjoying diplomatic immunity from our laws.

On Jan. 12, 1971 President Nixon's 45-member Commission for Observance of the 25th Anniversary of the United Nations met in San Francisco to conduct public hearings, I suppose to allow more propaganda for the U.N.

Americans who realize the harm done by this Communist organization should flood our Congressmen with requests to get America out of the United Nations and the United Nations out of America.

Israel and opening of Suez Canal

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

Egyptian President Anwar el-Sadat, the most moderate leader in the Arab world, privately assured Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in January that the Suez Canal would be opened as soon as technically feasible. But the egg has hit the fan.

Mr. Kissinger puts great store on "maintaining the momentum" in his negotiations. He himself told me that he regards this momentum as a "make or break" matter.

With January's Egypt-Israel troop disengagement achieved, both Mr. Kissinger and President Sadat believed Israel would agree to the second stage of its withdrawal long before the canal's clearing operations were finished.

At the time of the first troop disengagement, and before Mr. Kissinger returned to Israel, he raised the question with President Sadat regarding what ships Egypt would permit through the canal.

President Sadat told Mr. Kissinger that his country distinguished between international shipping and Israeli flag ships. Israeli flag ships, he said, would be barred until a final Arab-Israeli settlement is achieved. But the canal would be open to Israeli cargo in third-nation ships after the second Israeli withdrawal.

I was in Egypt in January at the same time as Mr. Kissinger. I dined with him in Luxor. He confirmed this to me. President Sadat, in turn, told me in Cairo that he would order the work on the canal to start at once. He did.

Egypt's president expressed gratitude for America's assistance and said he would put Minister of Reconstruction Osman Ahmed Osman in charge of clearing out the explosives, sunken ships, submerged hulks, immense sand drifts and incredible debris.

U.S. Rear Adm. Kent J. Carroll, commanding our naval detachment helping the Egyptians, and accompanied by demolition crews, Navy divers, "Frog men," technicians, etc., arrived within a week after President Sadat's statement to me. British and French detachments fol-

President Sadat invited me back to Egypt for the wedding of his daughter in July. On my second 1974 visit, Adm. Carroll stated that the detachments and the Egyptians would complete their work by mid-December, with a subsequent three months of dredging needed. The canal could open next March or April.

Adm. Carroll officially communicated this to the able U.S. ambassador to Egypt, Herman F. Eilts, who has President Sadat's complete confidence, and to U.S. Secretary of the Navy J. William Middendorf.

Now the rub. Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy is a Sadat spokesman. He has told a closed session of the National Assembly that "the Suez Canal will not be opened until Israel is willing to make a complete withdrawal east of the canal so as to make the waterway and the cities safe against an Israel surprise attack."

Ismail Fahmy confirmed that Egypt, Abu Dhabi and Saudi Arabia have taken a lease on the South Yemin islands controlling the strategic Bab el Mandeb Straits. It is an absolute bottleneck controlling all exit from the Red Sea. This threatens Israel shipping from Israel's port of Eilat around the African cape and to the Orient.

Speaking for President Sadat, he reaffirmed Egypt's desire to go ahead with a second-stage military disengagement agreement with Israel on the Sinai front and to do so even without similar Syrian negotiations with Israel involving the Jordan River's West Bank and the Golan Heights. With a year having passed, he put the matter squarely

The Geneva Mideast Peace Conference convened only once. This was in December 1973—a full year ago. The United States and USSR sponsored the conference. U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and Brezhnev cronie Vladmir M. Vinogradov, the Soviet ambassador to Egypt during the 1973 Arab-Israel war, were cochairmen. Egypt, Jordan and Israel attended, but Syria boycotted the conference. And it lasted only two days. Mr. Kissinger is due in Cairo and Jerusalem in December to further his mediations and unquestionably President Sadat is disappointed and disturbed by the loss of momentum in Mr. Kissinger's efforts.

Now, for the first time and in the face of a year of waiting, Egypt's president has made the opening of the canal a contingent matter.

REFLECTIONS- The U.S. House of Representatives has had 435 members since 1912.

The voters in 1912 sent 291 Democrats, 127 Republicans and 17 other independents to the U.S. House.

Sixty-two years later, the people elected 291 Democrats and 144 Republicans.

The largest number of Republican congressmen elected in this period was in 1928 when 267 went to the House with Herbert Hoover being elected President.

Two years later the GOPs took a licking by losing 53 House seats.

The bottom was hit for Republicans in 1936 when only 103 were elected to the House.

Ten years later the GOPs gained a majority in the House be electing 245 congressmen.

That was in 1946, when the Democrats suffered their largest loss of seats in the past 62 years by drop-

The 1948 elections saw the pendulum swing and the GOPs took their hardest lumps by losing 75 seats to the Democrats.

In the violent swings of public opinion in the post war years, the Republicans sprang back in 1952 to capture control of the House by gaining back 42 of the 75 seats lost four years before.

The Democrats recaptured control of the House in 1954 and have held onto it since then.

The Lyndon Johnson landslide of 1964 swept 37 Republicans out of their House seats and raised the Democratic total to the highest number since 1936.

The 295 Democratic congressmen elected with LBJ in 1964 tops the onesided congressional races which we saw this year, which put 291 Democrats in the House.

If this indicates anything, the swings of the fortunes of the two major parties were higher in the Depression years in some ways. The Democrats elected the highest number of House seats in 1936 with 331 and the Republicans in 1928 hit their high water mark with 267.

Also, no matter how far a party has skidded, it has always rebound-

Michael York likes variety in roles

British actor Michael York is ambitious. "I want to do it all. I want to try as many different roles as my acting range will allow," he said.

And the slim, blond-haired actor practices what he states. He has appeared in a wide spectrum of roles during his relatively brief film career—the sad hero in "Cabaret," the swashbuckling D'Artagnan in "The Three Musketeers" and the faithful husband in "Murder on the Orient Express," to cite three recent examples.

Now he adds another credit, portraying Pip, the memorable Charles Dickens character, in the new "Bell System Family Theatre" presentation of "Great Expectations." The drama special will be colorcast on the NBC Television Network today from 7-9 p.m.

"I like to try anything once," said York. "Light roles, Shake-speare, contemporary drama, costume roles. The more variety the better. And I'm willing to take my chances on how all of this will affect my career."

"Great Expectations" was filmed in England, both in London and on location. "That's one of the reasons I'm happy about this production. It has put a temporary halt to my constant traveling," said York. "This is the first time in 18 months that I've been able to remain in England for any length of time."

York described his role as Pip this way: "Challenging but not difficult. By that I mean it has been relatively easy for me to assume the character of Pip, thanks in large part to the script, which is very good. The dialogue is just right. It has the flavor of the period without being stilted."

In one segment of the special (a sequence filmed at Pinewood Studios, not far from York's birthplace at Buckinghamshire) the actor joins Sarah Miles and other members of the cast in a horse-riding sequence. The animal he had, named Johnny, responded to command in a skittish manner. "This is not too bad actually," York said. "I remember the first time I rode a horse—it was for my first film, 'The Taming of the Shrew,' with Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor. It took place in the first scene. That was a memorable experience. I had to ride the horse down a flight of stairs. No amount of instruction helped. The horse was almost contemptuous. I don't thing I've fully mastered the art of riding yet. But I'll get it right."

There were no mishaps with the horse but a horse-drawn coach did create a problem for York during the filming of "Great Expectations." He was to climb aboard the coach via a stepladder. However, the horses anticipated the director's cue and started to move before York finished his climb. The ladder swayed and, before he knew it, York was on the ground. "I missed the bus," he said with a laugh.

You have to be involved in school issues, a part-time job, and politics. You want all the answers. You've a stock of little known facts, like a perfumer is called a "nose" because of his exceptional sense of smell and that it can take up to 10 years and hundreds of exotic ingredients to create a new perfume.

Ruled by your head, you seek a man to share your interests.

Conversation? You have a gift for it. But give your man a chance too. He'll admire your love for sports and insatiable desire for travel.

Jane Fonda globe-trots pursuing her acting career. Spray your suitcases be-

Spray your suitcases before packing, tuck a bar of your favorite soap between lingerie to impart a delicate fragance. Spray the inside of your shoes before placing them in the suitcase.

Since one of the greatest terrorsof packing is getting the suitcase to close. Elizabeth Arden has designed "The Luxury Traveler (5)" with all the contents enclosed folding, blessedly flat. Included are two empty plastic bottles and a little funnel for refills. The traveler also contains cleanser, skin lotion and moisture film. Unfolded it can be hung by its closure to a door hook. The traveler would be a great gift for the one on your Christmas list who has everything.

Don't hoard your perfume for special occasions, enjoy it every day.

Why not give the man in your stars Pierre Cardin, Chanel or British Sterling in cologne or after shave and watch him respond.

I didn't realize I had so many men reading my columns until the last two months and they ask me why I didn't write about their aurascope as well as the women—so, just for them, next week's column will be for the male Sagittarius.

Thanksgiving.

We are at the season of harvest. It will be one of the greatest the world has ever known, though it may not be enough. Thankfulness may be expressed publicly and in an organized way only once a year but, for people who live successfully, it is an attitude and a part of the way they live. It is a return of love for Thankfulness includes our abilities and our opportunities to make something finer and greater than anything which existed before. It also includes all those essentials of life which cannot be touched or seen. Intelligence, faith, hope, love and charity are as essential to our good living as the earth from which we take our food and the attitude of thankfulness responds to them as well.

We can be thankful things aren't worse than they are. It is more realistic to be thankful that they are as good as they are.

The Pilgrims were most thankful, not for bounty, but for survival.

Dixon native promoted in Bell system

Mary Kay Stewart of St. Charles has been promoted to Wheaton district public relations representative by Illinois Bell, effective Dec. 1. The assignment includes public relations responsiblities in Aurora, Wheaton, Lombard, Glen Ellyn, Roselle, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and other communities.

Patricia A. Montgomery, who has held the position, will transfer as a manager in the company's marketing department in Chicago. Miss Montgomery is a resident of Lisle. A native of Dixon, Miss Stewart is a graduate of Purdue University. She also studied in Lima, Peru at St. Mark's University. She began her telephone career as a service consultant in the company's Skokie office. Her last assignment was assistant staff supervisor-business services where she designed instructional material for users of the company's business services.

Miss Stewart is now completing a six-month assignment as Illinois Bell's loaned executive to the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy.

Miss Stewart is the daughter of Mrs. Rachel Stewart, 516 East Morgan Street, Dixon. She graduated from Dixon High School in 1962.

Vincent and Marc Lindeen operate a father-and-son farming partnership, raising hogs and corn on a farm near Swedesburg, Iowa. Last winter they had their homes insulated with a radically different kind of insulation material called Rapco-Foam.

"They drill these little holes in the outside walls and pump in this stuff that looks like shaving cream," Marc recounts. "It sets in a couple of minutes and becomes permanent."

Vincent indicated that his house was built in 1908 and had no insulation in the walls at all. His fuel savings amounted to between 25 and 30 kg percent.

Although the walls of Marc's house were insulated, it had settled, leaving large open areas. Rapco-Foam was pumped in with the existing insulation, forming a permanent shield against cold, heat and wind.

Not only did we cut our heating and air conditioning bills nearly in half, the draftiness of the house was eliminated," Marc says.

The experience of the Lindeens is typical of many Rapco-Foam users, especially those with older homes or homes with inadequate insulation. Rapco-Foam's high insulation values also makes it ideal for new homes,

Ask Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: How can all those daytime TV game shows give away the money and merchandise they do?-L. N. J., Stillwater, Okla.

To TV, which is a big money operation, what the game shows give away is peanuts, or may be cashews. Much of the merchandise is given by the manufacturers, in exchange for the plug on the air. The cash when measured against the cost of a dramatic show is nothing. A game show is still the cheapest kind of programming, relatively,

DEAR DICK: Can you tell me what you can find out about Harve Presnell, who played in the movie, "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," and what he is doing today?-MRS. NIKKI OLDENBURGER, Iron Springs, Alberta, Canada.

Harve's agent tells me he's just returned from a tour with "Molly Brown" and an engagement in London where he appeared in the musical version of "Gone With The Wind." He's doing mostly stage work these days. It's really a shame that a man with such a glorious voice can't find film or TV work, while the creepy-peepies with their nonvoices make fortunes.

DEAR DICK: Some years ago there was a TV series called Jim Bowie. Please, could you tell me who played the title role?-MRS. SHARON PERTUIT, Violet, La.

Sure could. It was Scott Forbes, and, to answer your next question, the series ran on ABC from '56 to '58.

DEAR DICK: I would like to know what year Lee Meriwether (of Barnaby Jones) was Miss America.-MRS. A. LEONHARDT, San Jose, Calif.

That little fact is now omitted from Lee's official biography. I guess she doesn't want people to pinpoint her age that precisely. But it's a matter of record—the beautiful Miss Meriwether was Miss America 1955.

DEAR DICK: Will you tell us why the FBI isn't on any more. That was our family's favorite program. Now after the Lawrence Welk show is over we just turn the TV off. The new shows that were advertised all summer long are lousy as usual. Is there any way to get The FBI back on?-THE THOMPSON FAMILY, Joplin, Mo.

No way at all. The show had a long and healthy run. The ratings had begun to drop off. The show had just about exhausted the story material available to it and, as a matter of fact, The FBI had become Fairly Boring Indeed.

Welk heralds Thanksgiving musically

"The Lawrence Welk Show" announces commencement of the annual Holiday Season with the maestro's annual Thanksgiving family program on Channel 9 Sunday, from 9 to 10

Welk's Thanksgiving show musically presents the joyful songs of holiday family gatherings combined with hymnal favorites reflecting the happiness of the annual holiday

"Home for the Holidays" starts the program, followed by Guy and Ralna Hovis' dueting "Let Us Break Bread Together" and Bobby and Cissy with a dance routine to a "Turkey in the Straw" medley.

"Let It Snow," "You'll Never Walk Alone," and "Lost Chord" are band offerings, the latter featuring soloist Myron Floren. Other songs include "Try a Little Kindness' by Clay Hart, "We Gather Together" sung by Welk's Septette, "Stars In Your Eyes" by Anacani, "Consider Yourself" featuring Welk's performers, and "Autumn Leaves" played by Charlotte Harris and Bob Ralston.

Tanya Welk heralds the coming of winter with "Button Up Your Overcoat," Joe Feeney sings "Be Thankful," and Jim Roberts offers "A House With Love." Arthur Duncan taps to a lively "Hi, Neighbor," Ava Barber sings "Hey, Good Lookin' "to drummer-husband Roger Sullivan, and Norma Zimmer and company close with their annual Thanksgiving show offering, "Bless This House.'

His apprenticeship is over

By ELLIE GROSSMAN EDGARTOWN - (NEA) Good actors can make you believe just about anything

So when Richard Dreyfuss says, "I'd cut an arm up to here to work with Marlon Brando," it's a bit unnerving.

For a split second, a grisly image presents itself. Dreyfuss picking up a knife from the table, coolly hacking off his right arm (he's lefthanded) and marching out of the hotel dining room, off Martha's Vineyard where he's filming Universal's adaptation of the Peter Benchley novel, "Jaws," and straight into a New York stage production of "Death of a Salesman," with Brando, fully armed, as Willy Loman.

"I got a call today to play the role of Biff," he says, "and Brando was mentioned as a possible lead. But I'm too young for the part." (Dreyfuss is 26.)

Still, on second thought, if Brando were to say yes

"He's the greatest actor of the 20th century," Dreyfuss states without hesitation. "I've seen 'Julius Caesar' over 30 times. Here's a performance by a man born in Nebraska, acting with John Gielgud and James Mason, and he's the only real Roman in the whole room." He "He laughts delightedly. walked like a Roman, he talked like a Roman, he wore a toga as if he were born in it." Dreyfuss gets up to demonstrate, end succeeds despite his blue jeans and pullover.

"Brando has two gifts," he continues. "First, he looks like a classical hero. Then, he has incredible powers of observation. He can mimic more people's behavior than any other actor.

"Most actors have one expression of anger, let's say, whether they're playing a wino or a prosecutor.

"In 'On the Waterfront,' Brando's anger is inarticulate, uneducated." He imitates the thick-mouthed characterization.

"But in the first scene of 'The Ugly American,' it's all up front, here. His anger was eastern seaboard, Harvard, monied, totally contained."

He stops a passing waitress to order his fifth cup of coffee and lights another cigarette.

Bearded now and wearing glasses, Dreyfuss looks nothing like Duddy Kravitz, the hustling young Jewish Canadian he played to critical acclaim in the film, "The Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz." (Jewish himself, he does not think the movie's anti-Semitic.) True, he's animated and brash and engagingly irrepressible like Duddy. "I love Duddy, I understand him. No other actor could have played that part because no other actor has my energy level." But unlike Duddy, whose intellectual curiosity stopped with "God's Little Acre, Dreyfuss is a student of politics and American history. A devoted actor who'd chuck it all to publish a metropolitan newspaper because that's where the power is.

He's a Frank Capra "freak," a romantic - "I love to hear my grandparents talk about the old days when they were immigrants" - a self-confessed egoist an d womanizer, and a coscientious objector who looks back fondly on his substitute military duty.

"I worked as a medical file clerk for 24 months in '69 and '70 in Los Angeles County General Hospital and I fell in love with file work.

"I volunteered for the night shift because on weekends and holidays I'd have an hour and a half of work a night. The rest of the time I'd sit down with my cigarettes and a cup of coffee and read. I was known as the clerk with the book."

But the real joy was the baby charts.

"No one could do them but me," he says with relish and borrows a pen to draw a facsimile on a paper napkin.

The serial number has to be repeated here and here. The baby's name goes here, the date, sex, etc. Now I'd never let this go through this way. The 'seven' is casual, the 'one' is fine, the 'three' is indifferent. And then there's the word. baby. I could write it 85 ways. Like this or this. 'Baby'," he says coyly and grins.

He's a harsh critic of everyting. Especially his own work. And "Duddy Kravitz," he says, despite the kudos, is "a film I'm not proud of. My work is bad in it. It's mannered."

Still, it opened doors for him and that means, eventually, his

One in which every scene will be interesting because, he says, all but pounding the table, "There's no excuse for a film or a play not to be interesting. There's human behavior in everything. Hamlet is brilliant because there are so many moments that illuminate humanity and reflect what we all do."

And how does Dreyfuss view the human condition? "Did you ever read 'Scaramouche'?" he asks. "The opening line is -" He pauses, smiling in anticipation while he gets it straight. leaning forward, savoring each rod, ' "He was born with a gift of laughter and a sense that the world was mad'."

Stuart Duncan finds producing his sauce

This is the era of the independent producer, those daring young men with not much else besides nerve and an idea. Of them all, perhaps the nerviest is a man named Stuart Duncan.

He's just made his first movie, "Let's Go For Broke." It'saJames Bond spoof, with, the heroine an inept girl named Jackie Broke.

Duncan grew up intending to go into the family business (Lea & Perrins, the sauce people) but, after a brief fling, quit to try something for himself. He always had loved the theater, so tried producing plays. His third was "Godspell," a longrunning off-Broadway hit in New York.

He decided he wanted to try a

"It was a dumb thing to do," he says, but he did it anyhow. He knew two people — his prep school roommate was producer Martin Ransohoff and one of his "Godspell" investors ($900 worth) was a beautiful blonde actress named Christa Helm.

He hired Miss Helm to be his star. She was supposed to be a karate expert, according to the script. She isn't.

"They just had me kick people," she says. "I kicked so energetically I threw my back out. I was in traction for days, in the same hospital where Joe Namath was having a bad knee worked on. I had once dated Joe, so that was all right.'

Duncan says the picture cost $1.1 million. He figures $300,000 of that was wasted because he was new and made mistakes. As it is, he thinks, he has a good

Hollywood conversation generally revolves around movies but these days Hollywoodsters are like everybody else - they talk about inflation.

Anne Francis, who had just finished her work in CBS' exciting "The FBI Story - Alvin Karpis," told me she had solved inflation with what she calls "Francis' Law."

Francis' Law? It's simple, she says.

"If you have problems paying your bills, just make some more money.

She admits, of course, that that isn't as easy to do as it is to say. Even in her star-type

"These days," she says, "TV shows, instead of paying more, are trying to get you to work for less. The new residual ruling, under our new union contract, won't make itself felt for some time. And, besides, there just aren't that many jobs around

What Anne is doing now is something very different for a glamor gal. She's just made a pilot for a syndicated series -'or maybe it'll be on PBS" about home improvements. She thought up the title, "Home Improvements," herself.

Anne has always been handy around the house and so she figured she might as well capitalize on that talent. On the show, she'll demonstrate how to do things and talk to experts on such subjects as plumbing, carpentry and electricity.

It'll be nice having Anne around the house, one way or

Better tax break for the self-employed

The new pension reform law lets you put 15 per cent of your earned income (up to $7500 a year) in your own retirement plan. And you don't pay federal income taxes on it until you retire, when you're likely to be in a lower tax bracket.

To qualify for the new tax benefits, you do have to put your tax-deferred income into a retirement plan which conforms with the new law. Your Country Companies agent has several plans, providing you with a variety of ways in which to fund your own retirement program.

The Country Companies. We're a little different than most insurance people.

Concotelli-Wigginton marriage vows

White satin pew bows and twin altar arrangements of white and butterscotch pompons decorated St. Patrick's Catholic Church for the Nov. 2 marriage of Miss Doris Ann Concotelli, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dominic Concotelli, to John Wigginton, son of the Charles Wiggintons.

The wedding was performed at 1 p.m. by the Rev. James A. Molloy, pastor of the church, and nuptial music was provided by Miss Carol Bowman, vocalist and guitarist, and John Stanley Smith, organist.

For her wedding, the bride selected a gown of white satin and Cluny lace. Insertions of lace encircled the hemline of the gown's floor-length skirt, which was styled with a chapel train, and her lace-trimmed empire bodice featured a high neckline and lace bishop sleeves ending in cuffs of sata peau. A lace Camelot cap held her ballerina veil of illusion tiers, and as she was escorted to the altar by her father she carried a nosegay of white and butterscotch pompons, yellow Sweetheart roses, orange and brown starflowers and baby's

Miss Julie Coomes, Rockford. the bride's maid of honor, was attired in a full-length gown of forest green polyester fashioned with an A-line skirt and a halter bodice. The gown was complemented by a matching

Leroy Spangler, Sycamore, attended the bridegroom as best man; serving as groomsman was Jerry Scheffler, and ushers for the ceremony were James Concotelli, brother of bride, and the bridegroom's brother-in-law, David Love.

Mrs. James Johnson, sister of the bride, acted as hostess during a reception and buffet luncheon held in the VFW Club following the service. Green and rust streamers decorated the refreshment tables, and a tiered wedding cake, topped by a cluster of dried flowers, was served by Miss Paula Sharkey and Miss Georgia Muntean, as coffee and punch were poured by Miss Cindi Kelchner, Miss Sue Underhile and Miss Boni Baebler. Miss Jenny Henson assisted at the buffet table, and gifts for the couple were displayed by Miss Sophroana Callow and Miss Terri Tieken. Wedding and reception guests were registered by Miss Patricia Reilly, Sterling.

The bride graduated in 1973 from Dixon High School, where her husband graduated in 1968, and both attended Sauk Valley College.

Since their honeymoon spent at Pheasant Run Lodge, St. Charles, the newlyweds have been residing at 1010 University St., in Dixon where Mr. Wigginton, is employed by the Medusa Cement Company

Members of the bridal party were guests of the bridegroom's parents at a rehearsal dinner in the Brown Shingle Restaurant, and prenuptial parties honoring the bride included a miscellaneous shower given by her maid of honor, Miss Coomes, and Miss Donna Carlson. She was also honored at a shower arranged by her sisters, Mrs. William Gordinier, St. Charles, and Mrs. Johnson, and a linen shower was hosted by her attendant, Mrs. Love, Mrs. Clarence Johns, aunt of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Carolyn

Dear Ann by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: After a long, hard day at the hospital (I am chief of surgery), I picked up the paper and turned to your column. I read the letter from the woman whose brother committed suicide after he had run over a child who was playing in the street.

This morning I had to tell a mother that her beautiful, blueeyed four-year-old son died on the table. He, too, was riding a tricycle in the street. His little body was so entangled in the trike that the boy and the trike were laid together on the stretcher.

been called to the emergency room to face sobbing parents whose child was playing in the street. May I pose a question to every parent who is reading this letter: "Do you want your child to live to adulthood?" Not one will say, "No." But I warn you, the next time you allow your child to play in the street or take his trike out to ride it wherever he pleases, it might be the last time you will see him alive. Sign me — Tired M.D.

Dear M.D.: Neither of us will ever know how many little lives you saved today. I hope it will help to make up for the ones you've lost on the table.

Dear Ann Landers: You have always taken the position that a young woman need not give her fiance "the names and numbers of all the players." Your advice is, "Keep your mouth shut about past indiscretions. It's nobody's business."

Does this go for an out-of-wedlock child? When I was 15 I had a son and put him up for adoption. I want to do what's right. Please advise me. - Settling Down

Dear S.D.: A live child can hardly be considered an "indiscretion." Your fiance should be told - and the sooner the

Dear Ann Landers: Today a young girl telephoned and said she wanted to meet my husband and that he had refused to see her. She is his out-of-wedlock daughter. I learned about this girl a few years ago but not from my husband. The child's mother came to see me. My husband is aware of that little visit because I told him at the

Now he is terribly upset that the girl would have the nerve to telephone me and try to inflict herself on our family. I need your counsel on how to deal with the problem.

Should I tell our children? They are 12, 14, 16 and 18. I'm afraid if I don't tell them they will hear it from someone else. All this happened 21 years ago, before I even knew my hus-

The girl left me her phone number but he refused to take it. He is a truck driver and frequently passes through the town where this girl and her mother live. He has never called them so I figure he really has no interest.

My husband is a great guy and I love him dearly. What should be done? - Concerned

Dear C: Your children should be told about their half-sister, but this is your husband's responsibility, not yours. I hope he will accept it like a man. Since he has made it clear that he wants nothing to do with the girl, don't pressure him to see her. And don't invite her over to meet your children, or you'll have real trouble. It is apparent that your husband wants to forget this part of his past and you should respect his wishes. (P.S. I get the impresion that he had never given the girl's mother any financial help and THIS is wrong, unless, of course, she turned it down.)

By Oswald & James Jacoby The late P. Hal Sims was asked if he had a superstitious feeling about some particular card. He thought a while and replied: "The ace of spades is lucky for me.'

Today's hand illustrates another of Hal's superstitions. He believed firmly that if you did not want a certain opponent to get the lead, you should play him for holding a singleton king and refuse to finesse against his Playing at three notrump, Hal carefully won the heart lead with the king, not the ace. He had to attack diamonds. If East got in with the king, East would read the ace as a falsecard from ace-king. CHICAGO (AP) - The gener- he paid half the money in 1970 and half in 1971, the newspaper said. The funds were solicited by a political advisor of former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, the newspaper said.

Lee was scheduled to appear before the Illinois Racing Board during its investigation of political contributions and their effect on assigning racing

The Tribune said Lee felt he made the contribution because "we want to stay in business. That's all. It didn't have anything to do with the racing dates. I'm certainly not proud of what we did."

Lee said Thomas Drennan. Ogilvie's campaign manager and political confidant, solicited the contributions.

Lee was prosecution witness in the investigation of racetrack stock dealings that resulted in former Gov. Otto Kerner going to prison.

Robert Carey, president of Suburban Downs, Inc., which holds harness and throughbred meets at Hawthorne Park, testified that he contributed $60,-000 to the campaigns of Ogilvie and other Republicans during a three-year period.

He said the contributions were "so we could compete with other racing groups."

Carey said that two of the contributions-$10,000 to the Republican House Committee Fund in November, 1970, and $25,000 to the Republican Chicago Campaign Fund in February, 1971—were made after he (Carey) was solicited over the Senate sponsors said the bills would be called for a vote at the earliest opportunity. The bills were passed by the House earlier this year.

Both houses held afternoon sessions Thursday and adjourned.

The goveror met in private caucuses with Democrats of both houses Thursday and reportedly urged them to resist further attempts to override vetoes that cut state spending.

The senior citizens bill, which would cost an estimated $34 million, would provide cash grants in amounts ranging from 1 to 3.5 per cent of the income of senior citizens with household incomes of less than

The Sauk Valley College Film Commission will present "Alternate Cinema," a collection of prize-winning independent 16mm films on Saturday at 7:30 p.m., in the Little Theatre at SVC. Sauk students will be admitted free with their ID cards and admission for non-students

The films range in variety from "Manhattan Melody, about an inept bicycle thief in New York who falls in love with a drum majorette from New Jersey, to "6344," which focuses on the demolition of an old family home to make way for a modern housing complex.

Nabbed twice on same charges

John W. Travers, 26, Franklin Grove, was arrested twice Thursday by Lee County Sheriff's Deputies on similar charges

Travers was first stopped around 9 a.m. on Elm Street in Franklin Grove and charged with improper use of registration of title, (ficticious license plates). He was released with notice to appear in court.

Later Travers was again stopped in Franklin Grove on Main Street, where he was cited for not valid registration. He posted bond and will appear in court on the charges Dec. 5.

provide $70 to senior citizens with a household income of $2,000. The grant to a family with an income of $5,000 would be $75, and senior citizens earning $8,000 would receive $80. Emerging from the meeting with Senate Democrats, Walker said he had not decided what he would do if he was the presented the legislation for his signature.

'We have to look at the whole picture of what comes out of this veto override session," the governor said. "I am in favor of that particular kind of relief. I think it would be more sensible for us to take a look at that in January or February when we have a little better feel as to where our economy is going.'

The Senate deleted language in the bill which stated that it aimed to provide grants equivalent to the money paid by senior citizens in sales tax on food, clothing, home heating and medicine.

However, Senate Revenue Committee staff members said the measure was not linked to the sales tax and provides cash grants dependent only on income.

An attempt by Senate Republicans to substitute for the bill a plan to expand the socalled circuit breaker tax relief program for senior citizens was defeated on a 28 to 28 vote.

Attempts were made in the House to override the governor's reduction of pay increase allowed employes of the University of Illinois.

The measure received only 36 of the 89 votes needed to give the employes an 8 per cent pay raise instead of the 5 per cent salary boost approved by the governor. Further consideration of the matter was postponed.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE CASE C-605: Janet T., aged 28, is the sexual neurotic who was disturbed by failure to have a baby.

"Dr. Crane," she confessed, "when I first got married, I wanted to avoid pregnancy so I used the 'Pill.'

"But after a couple of years, several of my girl friends were having babies, so I decided it would be wonderful if Jack and could also become parents.

"That's when I got the shock of my life! "For though I quit using the 'Pill,' nothing happened! "And after six months, I became alarmed; then terrified. "For I not only grew panicky to think I could never have a baby of my own; but then I also began to fear that Jack wouldn't love me, since I wasn't all there as a woman.

"I would thus alternate between crying in self-pity, after which I would nag Jack

"That was to force him into protesting his love for me, so I would then accuse him of affairs with other women, even including my own twin sister. "Actually, I knew he had been true to me but I craved his vigorous protests to bolster my wounded sex ego.

"In desperation, I even had affairs with those three men he mentioned, vainly hoping that maybe I was chemically allergic to Jack and the other men might be able to get me pregnant.

"Dr. Crane, since our interview with you and the use of proper menstrual timing, plus the alkaline douche, I am now relaxed and ideally happy for I am already three months pregnant.

"Your 'Worry Clinic' has literally saved our marriage and changed me from a neurotic, nagging wife into a most happy expectant mother!

San Francisco won first meeting between the two, 16-10. Since then, 49ers have new quarterback... Falcons, a new coach. No race in NFC West... "playing for respect." BUFFALO ... 23 If Cleveland hadn't played Steelers last week, we'd pick them to upset Bills. However, Buffalo met Miami, so both were in "psyched-up" type games. Home game for Browns. CHICAGO ... 13

OAKLAND...31
Raiders continue to terrorize AFC Western Division. Beat Broncos, 28-17, earlier in season, and favored again, this time by 10. Super Bowl and Oakland Synonymous this year. CINCINNATI...23

Bengals have high hopes in AFC Central ... Chiefs have been completely de-feathered in AFC West. Second straight road game for KC coming off Monday niter against Broncos. MIAMI...28
Mew YORK JETS...13
Miami just slipped by Jets in first meeting, 21-17. Should be bigger spread here as Dolphins have moved back into thick of AFC East championship fight after slow start.

MINNESOTA ... 13 With these defenses, maybe the only field goal will win it! Vikings' offense more alive in recent games than Rams. Another possible NFC championship preview. L.A. at home. NEW ENGLAND... 30

New England blasted Baltimore earlier in season, 42-3. Final score in this one should be more respectable, but still 17-point difference. AFC East game in Colt-country.

WASHINGTON...24
PHILADELPHIA...17
Two weeks ago in Philadelphia, Redskins railled to beat Eagles, 27-20. Same 7-point spread favors Skins this time in Washington.
NFC East scrap so important to both. ST. LOUIS . . . 24

Traditional Hanukkah festivities for Jewish

During this festive holiday specialty stores, or can be season, when the Christian made simply from cardboard, world is commemorating the miracle of the birth of Christ. Jews are also reminded of a miracle which makes Hanukkah a significant holiday in this season of good cheer. Like most Jewish holidays, Hanukkah—the feast of lights combines joy with solemnity. The holiday, which means rededication, commemorates an ancient fight and victory to preserve the Jewish religion and traditions.

At holiday time, Jewish children are told the story of Judah Maccabeus, who, with a small courageous band of followers, led a successful fight against the Syrian-Greek oppressor Antiochus in 164 B.C. The temple, which had been seized, was recaptured, and the joyous people set about to rededicate it. But when it came time for the rededication ceremonies, only one flask of oil was to be foundenough to burn for one day. Then a miracle occurred ... the oil lasted for eight days. Thereafter, Hanukkah has been an eight-day holiday.

In keeping with the joyous mood of the season, the celebration of Hanukkah tends to take on some of the popular aspects of Christmas. Gifts are exchanged, homes are decorated and festive meals are planned.

One strictly Hanukkah custom that's perfect for the young set is the Dreidel game, a top spinning game of chance for which the traditional rewards are Mrs. Ted (Dorothy) Nelson, mounds of delicious candies or Compt

The Doctor Says:

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D. DEAR DR. LAMB - I'm 37. For about six years I've had a severe case of ulcerative colitis. Seldom do I see any articles about it, and I find most people don't know what it is or anything about it.

A few weeks ago when I was released from the hospital, my doctor, the leading internist in this area, suggested an operation. This involves all of my colon and part of my small

My former doctor cautioned me continually about cancer. Some of my latest spells have been more emotional and I've had vomiting. Others have suggested I try having either allergy tests made or admitting myself to the state mental hospital for help before I go through the operation. What would you suggest?

DEAR READER - I wish there were a good answer. The cause of ulcerative colitis is not known. And, we know just about as much about its treatment.

As you know the most common features of the disease are diarrhea, often with blood and mucus, and lower abdominal crampy pain. The symptoms are variable. Some people even have changes in the rectum or lower colon and have few, if any, noticeable symptoms. Others have severe diarrhea, hemorrhage and complications such as perforation of the colon.

It can be, and no doubt in vour case is, a difficult disease. It can become chronic with recurring attacks of severe diarrhea and bleeding. Weight loss is common with it.

Milk and milk products seem to cause attacks in some patients. At one time it was reaction to milk might be the cause. In any case I believe anyone with this problem should avoid milk and milk products and goods made with lots of milk, like milk gravy and sauces.

Some cases seem to be started off with a diarrhea infectious illness. In some ways the disease acts like the immune mechanism of the body has gone haywire and the body is trying to reject the lining of the colon as foreign tissue. The disease, incidentally, can involve the rectum, colon, and terminal part of the small in-

I can't judge what you should do about surgery, but I can has a good basis for his recommendation. Six years of trouble with involvement of the colon and terminal ileum tells me you have a severe case. Many patients to surprisingly well after surgery.

Cancer of the colon is much more common in patients with ulcerative colitis. And, less than 30 per cent of them survive five years if a cancer occurs. That is why your first doctor was concerned.

Don't waste your time on allergy tests. They won't help solve your problem. And, forget about the emotional problems, they often go along with the disease, and you may find out that your problems in this area are markedly improved when you have improved physically. Now, not everyone needs surgery for ulcerative colitis, but in selected cases that have not gone into remission and have not done well with good medical treatment, then it is often a good choice.

Presently Britain's largest cathedral (Liverpool Cathedral, when completed, will exceed it in size) St. Paul's is the seat of the Bishop of London. Although in the midst of World War II devastation and grievously wounded, this splendid edifice miraculously survived countless air raids and escaped with only some well-mended scars.

Oddly enough, most of the three and one-quarter million dollars cost of construction of St. Paul's was defrayed through a tax on every ton of coal entering the port of London.

of centuries of pollution, erosion, weather, and war damage. dome, 145 ft. wide exteriorly and 112

Few churches can equal the historic prominence which the five edifices dedicated to St. Paul, London's patron saint, have amassed in 131/2 centuries upon the summit of the same hill.

Of Renaissance architecture, St. Paul's is unique among Britain's noble cathedrals . . . the masterpiece of a single 33-year period; one master mason; and a sole architect, Sir Christopher Wren. The latter is buried in St. Paul's crypt (considered the largest in Europe) along with many famous men-such as Lord Nelson, the Duke of Wellington, and Sir Alexander Fleming, the discoverer of penicillin. Wren's tomb bears a simple memorial slab which says, in Latin: "Reader, if you seek his memorial, look around you.

The first stone of St. Paul's was laid on June 21, 1675 and was completed in 1708 by Wren's son, also named Christopher, with the placing of the highest stone of the dome's lantern. Thus St. Paul's, built in 33 years during the episcopacy of one bishop, is in striking contrast to St. Peter's Basilica in Rome which had 13 successive architects and numerous master masons, and the construction of which extended over 120 years and the pontificates of

Including the ground portico, St. Paul's is 515 ft. from cast to west and 250 ft. from north to south across the transepts. The nave is 225 ft. long. The interior is 463 ft. long, 101 ft. wide and occupies 59,700 square feet. The great ft. in diameter at the base of the high drum, weighs 68,000 tons and, even by today's standards, is recognized as a remarkable engineering achievement. The dome itself has 3 components: an inner dome of stone and an external dome of timber framing covered with lead and, unseen between these, is a supporting inner brick cone 18 inches thick-upon which rests the stone lantern, ball and cross. The cross is 365 ft. above street level and, combined with the lantern, weighs over 800 tons.

Within the dome, 100 ft. above the floor of the cathedral, is the renowned Whispering Gallery where a mere whisper at one side can be clearly heard by a person with his car to the wall on the opposite side-107 ft. away.

EDITORS NOTE: It may not be long before some coach of a woman's athletic teams exhorts her disciples to win one for the Gipper, or some other hero. With the mandate of a new federal law called Title IX, women's collegiate sports will grow fast, and they may soon look like the men's teams. This, the final installment of a five-part series on "from bake sales to philosophy in women's sports, and how it may expand.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The old joke was that women went to college to get their Mrs. - a degree in marriage. No matter how untrue that line was then and is now, it did reflect the lack of opportunities women had on campuses to do things other than win bake-offs and husbands. Title IX of the 1972 Education Act, which forbids discrimination "under any education program or activity receiving federal financial assistance," has begun to change that.

It doesn't prevent women from finding husbands, nor men from finding wives, but it does make it illegal for any school which receives federal funds to deny women equal opportunities in athletics.

And women are making the most of those opportunities, which one official in the federal government calls "God-given, but not recognized by Congress until 1972.' The University of Pittsburgh. for example, has stopped playing games with women's athletics. Its women's sports program is one of the most aggressive in the country. "We want to win," says Pitt's has to be done to win. That is can be highly polluted. what we are here for."

Della Durant, who heads the women's athletic program at Penn State, says she is looking for "the excellence of women in the All-American.'

The women's athletic program at Pitt is now receiving $130,000 from an estimated total athletic budget of $1.9 million. At Penn State, a budget of $160,000 earmarked for wom- vention of the whistle. en's sports.

Only the Department of can decide whether these out- men's and women's sports. lays comply with its Title IX are in compliance with Title can catch up to the men. IX, proposed tentative regulations in June, which are now 'lady' in the games," says undergoing revision.

"We'll be looking at the totality of the program," says Gwen Gregory, main author of HEW's Title IX regulations. "And we'll look at the individual aspects of the teams - uniforms, facilities, coaching, training facilities, travel expenses and per diem allowances. Everything.

"We don't have any jurisdiction over what types of sports they offer, or whether they offer them at all," she says. "We're just going to make sure they don't discriminate in the offering of those programs."

Miss Gregory says that many athletic directors she has talked to seem to be on the right track, while others are looking for the nearest loop-

"If they want to know what the minimum is so they don't their attitude.' One school that seems to be more than one step ahead of the law is UCLA. In men's basketball, UCLA is the standard of excellence.

With $180,000 in its women's athletic coffers — three times as much as last year - and a prediction of $500,000 by 1979, UCLA might become known as the UCLA of women's sports. "They're trying. They're making a good-faith effort," says Miss Gregory.

And they've also come up teams just for women, a sort of temporary reverse discrimination to atone for past

"If a women is already a superstar, she can try out for the men's teams," Miss Gregory says of the plan called affirmative action. "But men can't try out for the women's teams.

"This is limited, though. It'll go on, not necessarily until women are up to par with the men, but at least until the women have received the training they have been precluded from in the past."

The UCLA athletic department says no legal actions have been taken against its affirmative action teams yet, but a similar program in the Pennsylvania high schools is expected to be challenged.

Some schools around the country which do not have the funds for two separate teams may open one team to both sexes. The thinking is that rather than build a separate program from scratch, allowing women to join the already existing men's teams will be most economical.

On the surface, one non-exassistant athletic director Sand- clusive coed team seems fair; ra Bullman. "We will do what under the surface the water

"We don't want all men's teams open to women," says Joanne Thorpe, assistant athletic director at Southern Illinois. "Very few women will make sport ... the team champion, those teams. The solution appears to be fair, but actually it is more discriminatory than what we have now.'

No matter what happens, Title IX will probably be the biggest thing to hit women's about $2.7 million has roughly and men's sports since the in-

CLUB CAB—THE VERSATILE PICKUP FROM DODGE.

The Dodge Club Cab is not only versatile because of the many things it can do (that regular cab pickups can't)-but Dodge offers the widest choice of Club Cab pickups. Only Dodge offers you three Club Cab pickup models with optional dual rear wheels, as chassis-cabs (for special service bodies), and with full-time four-wheel drive. As a matter of fact, in a nose-to-nose comparison with Ford's Supercab, our Club Cab can carry up to 1550 pounds more payload. Talk about versatility and built-in value—the Dodge Club Cab has both!

DODGE TRADESMAN VAN-OUR VAN FOR ALL REASONS.

Tradesman is, indeed, our van for all seasons and reasons. Tradesman can be a handy work partner, your wife's best friend, or a vacation-perfect home-on-the-roam. Tradesman's notable standard features include front disc brakes, proven solid-state Electronic Ignition (on all engines), and a larger standard fuel tank than those on either Ford or Chevy vans. Tradesman's options include automatic transmission, power steering, air conditioning, a new single rear door, and an auxiliary rear compartment heater. Dodge vans, tough enough for any tradesman, but you don't have to be a tradesman to afford or appreciate one.

> To preserve the original beauty of the area plans were made to retain the magnificent maple tree at the entrance to the building.

> In April 1973 permission was granted by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to relocate our office. Finally, in August 1973, groundbreaking ceremonies were held at the new building site. Later the structures on the property were demolished in readiness for the new building.

Cheeseman Construction Company was to be the general contractor. Much time and talent was spent in the months to follow. Many decisions had to be made before the new building could be a reality.

The business was growing and another member was added to the staff, Jayne Friel, Teller.

Early in 1974 First Federal was saddened by the death of one of the first directors, William J. Wolf.

All of the First Federal people anxiously watched the progress of the building. Strikes were hampering the progress.

In April, Carolyn Altenburg was hired as a teller.

In the fall, Kathy Kreiser, who had been with us for about a year, left to go to college and Vicky Scharer replaced her.

Finally a moving date was established. The big day was to arrive October 28, 1974. The office was closed for one day and open for business in the new location at 413 N. Galena Ave. October 29, 1974.

We needed and had a lot faithful customers while we the finishing touches on the building.

To complete the beautiful setting for the new office building, Henry Lohse Nursery and Landscaping made the location even prettier by their selection of shrubs, a stone wall, sod and landscape design.

Under the direction of Charles Kested, local artists will be displaying their talents in the lobby to further enhance the beauty of the interior of the new building. A few paintings have already been purchased from long-time cus-
